NORWAY AND VICINITY

Fourth of July Matters.

A meeting of those interested in having a celebration was held at Engine House Hall, Friday night. Frank R. Taylor was chairman and E. G. Burnell clerk. Four committees were appointed to consider the advisability of such celebration and to arrange for it, if held. These committees met Tuesday night and as it seems to be the sentiment of those interested, that as the time is so short to arrange for a first-class celebration, as we have always had, or none at all, it was voted to defer the matter until another year.

Not that the Fourth will go by without any notice, however. A number of fall teams will take part in a tournament here, and there will be other notices of the day.

An Unknown Visitor.

Deputy Sheriff A. P. Bassett was at his cottage, Camp Sabin, at Lovell, this morning, and found it occupied by a woman, who seemed to be crazed. She taken up her abode there, and as the camp is well supplied with provisions she was living very comfortably. She said her name was Gertrude Wood, that she came from Bethel, and had been working at the hotel for Mr. Goddard.

No one at Lovell was found who knew her or could give any clue to whom she might be. She was 45 to 50 years old, very neat, ladylike appearing woman, who had kept the house in neat condition and had not been wasteful or destructive.

Mr. Bassett notified the selectmen Lovell, who took the woman in charge and are trying to find the relations of the unfortunate one.

Monday afternoon, a party consisting of Geo. A. Wilson, Jr., Ralph Pennington and Don Briggs were out on Peabody's place. The boys divided clear the rigging, then came back to Peabody's place. Charles Evans, his brother, who were in a rowboat near, attended to the spot and took the boys. They were not harmed in any way. The sailboat drifted around for several hours before it was taken in tow and brought to land.

DON'T DELAY

It is "Putting Off Till Some Other Day" that Causes so Many Sudden Deaths.

Be sure you need a medicine before you take it, but having once found out that you need it, lose no time in getting the best. If it's for the kidneys, liver, bladder or blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia, chronic constipation, or the weakness peculiar to women, the best is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and a very simple way to find out if you need it, is to put some urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours; if it has a sediment or a milky or cloudy appearance; if it isropy or stringy, pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that your kidneys and bladder are badly affected.

The Rev. Theodore Hunter, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Greensburg, Ky., writes us the following:

"It gives me much pleasure to state that I have received great benefit from the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Some time ago I had a severe attack of kidney trouble, but a few bottles of 'Favorite Remedy' have entirely removed the malady."

"Favorite Remedy" speedily cures such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, burning scalding pain in passing water, the staining of linen by your urine and all the unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

All druggists sell Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 size bottles.

Clover Bloom.

Come, Muse, and whisper a word I pray While I sing of the clover bloom.
That decks the fields on this rare June day, I love its sweet perfume.
O come when in pain on my couch I lie, And away from the din and strife Breathe one breath from the tasseled bloom With a dream of its pure, free life.
Away from all worry and strife and wrongs, All questions that vex and annoy, Let the faint sweet fragrance bring back to me Life's pleasures that knew no alloy.
Ah! hushed by its sweetness I'd live o'er again In fancy those bright, happy hours That sped as the sands of the hour glass flow—Those blissful food moments showed Wafted into the schoolroom from over the mead.
Came the scent of the clover bloom sweet,
And out in the fields where as children we played,
The bright clover sprang 'neath our feet.
Ah yes, I love clover! It seems like a link In life's chain of the happy past, Of bygone joys and sacred tears, A fragrance sweet to the last.
And sometimes think as I gaze on the flowers That deck the meadow and the hill, We may call this sweet bloom from Elysian bowers,
When we awake to that endless morn.

Glad Tidings.

While Spring-time flaunts her lovely garb around us,
And birds sing gaily in the fair dawn-light, We hear glad tidings wafted far beyond us Of southern Africa wafting from her night.
The Lord of hosts hath raised His hand to punish the work is done; He gladdens bring release, And lifts great burdens from hearts of thousands.
Because of peace. With joy of peace.
Eyes that were dull today are looking brighter, And a fair light that seemed a weight for years.
The warm blood's glowing makes fair cheeks more rosy.
That erstwhile paled and bathed in scalding tears.
Ah! many, many souls today are happy, With hope rekindled for "my soldier boy." Fond gray-haired mother, all the world rejoices with thee.
To see thy joy—to see thy joy.

Agricultural College Graduates.

The press reports of the commencement exercises in the agricultural colleges of New England, and the number of graduates in the regular agricultural course at not exceeding five in any state, and three of the six colleges without a graduate in the agricultural course. Some of these colleges give certificates to men completing shorter courses in agriculture, which are not included in the above statement.

What a criticism these facts are upon the agricultural tendency of these institutions! The number of agricultural graduates is ridiculously small and no other conclusion can be formed than that as institutions for graduating men in the science of agriculture, and supporting them, the statement made in regard to graduates to furnish abundant evidence of the truthfulness of this assertion. An institution in the great agricultural state of New York, which has graduated a single student in agriculture, has no more claim upon the farmer's support than upon the support of any other class of citizens, and is no more a farmers' college than each of the half dozen other colleges in the state.

We do not need to engage in a discussion of the reasons for the existence of such conditions in the agricultural colleges. These institutions are generally in the management and direction of classical men, who have no interest in or sympathy for agriculture as an industry, and who do not look beyond the temporary advantage of graduating men into industries and professions in which they can secure remunerative employment, instead of the broader field for which these colleges were established, of promoting the interests of the great fundamental industry of agriculture and the interest of all its followers by graduating men of ability, men capable to develop it and enable it to regain its former position as the first and foremost industry and entitled to first place in the affairs of state and nation.

For what have we asked for, for both state and nation? We have asked for those soliciting additional funds for these institutions? Why is it that when an appropriation for a building for one of these institutions is solicited of the legislature having jurisdiction, so much stress is laid upon its advantage to agriculture? Solely because the conscientious legislator is extremely liberal in support of any means that will afford aid to agriculture, for he knows this industry is entitled to recognition, and is due no other industry, or could he be granted no other interest; and so he has voted money to erect buildings, purchase apparatus, employ instructors and tables, headstones, monuments, etc. of the institutions, as it is his right and duty to do as an honest legislator of the people's interest.

Legislators have not voted this money for the purpose of adorning the college with fine buildings, or erecting monuments to cause amazement to an occasional visitor to the college laboratory, or to support a long list of college professors to lecture before women's clubs, attended by pink tees, or to lead the social life of the college town; but have voted it as they have been asked to vote it for the aid it would render to agriculture. What must be their feelings when they read the statement of the total number of students graduated in agriculture in the New England colleges, and what will be their reply when appealed to from the same source for funds again?

There are many people who believe that there should be a radical change in the policy of these institutions, or in the false colors under which they are sailing. We make reference to no particular college, for so far as agriculture is concerned it makes little difference whether the agricultural goes there is not a fraction of the effort made to get students in agriculture, that ought to be made. To assert that there is no demand among the farmers for agricultural education under the conditions existing in some of these colleges would be like a manufacturer asserting that there was no sale for his goods because the people didn't go to his factory and call for them. It is no more extravagant for an agricultural college to spend $75,000 or $100,000 a year in the name of agriculture, without making any special effort to get agricultural students than it would be for a factory to make goods without making an effort to sell them. When the proper effort is made in these institutions to get boys into the agricultural course, and to teach them when there, there will be no lack of applicants for the course.

There is not an agricultural college in New England, with its endowment, that should not send fifty educated boys to the farms every commencement day, instead of the meagre number we have reported. We recognize the importance and value of other instruction imparted in these colleges, but they were established and have been repeatedly supported and endowed for the grand purpose of graduating men into and out of agriculture. We make the point that they should do this as a leading feature or cease to appeal to private and public support as agricultural institutions. As such institutions they are entitled to financial aid a state or nation can give them, for there is no other educational interest so worthy of support; but unless they can show a better record in the future than this season's list of graduates they may be required to take their places beside other educational institutions in the matter of public financial support.

The farmers should look well into this matter and if they can get that to which they are entitled in these institutions they should be too liberal in supporting them, but if they find they are acting the proverbial "cat's paw" in pulling the chestnuts out of the fire for the benefit of some other industry than agriculture, they cannot be too hasty in eliminating their support from such a guise.

We judge the value of anything by the results attained. A theory may be good but if it cannot be put to some practical account it is not worthy our support. Many of the teachers employed have no practical knowledge or no liking for farming outside of the salary they receive. How can we expect students in farming under such instructors. They may go into the farming communities and give high sounding lectures, but as one has aptly said "it is preaching ignorance to the heathen."

Perhaps when the agricultural colleges were first started practical professors in agriculture could not be found, but now after these years if we have not educated practical professors it is a very discouraging condition of affairs, and we ask ourselves will the time ever come when we shall have them.

We remember hearing a funny story once connected with an agricultural college. The man in charge of this farm was noted for his knowledge and writings on stock feeding. He had compiled and published table after table on the feeding of cattle, and could bring about most any result through the feed. One of his calves was his special hobby. The published story of his calves caused a great deal of interest among the farmers and so unexpectedly one day one of the well-to-do farmers of the state thought he would like to see these calves, and upon the great state was delighted to show him and so the two journeyed to the college town. The man in charge of the farm and the authority on calf raising was not at home, but they could see the calves and they went to the calf raiser's great state, and modern improvements. The director noticed that the order was not up to what he had seen it on his stated visits with the board of directors, but this did not hinder their seeing the calves. They smelled the calves, and saw some very ordinary looking calves. They searched for the smell and under some bedding straw they found the babies of the poor calves awaiting burial.

Children's Corner.

Bethel, Maine, June, 1902.
DEAR EDITOR—This is a rainy day. My school is most done. I will send my recitation for Children's Day.

Another year has passed away.
Since last we met on Children's Day;
Each Sabbath with holy song As we sang with gladness and song.
Our teachers here today we greet,
And bow with them at Jesus' feet.
For all the blessings of the year,
Since last we met on Children's Day.
Some have gone the heavenly way,
To sing with Him the glad new hymn.
We know our dear Saviour, let them in,
Well as Him still for years to come,
And hope to meet when years are done Mid flowers in robes of white array.
Where every day is Children's Day.

Brightest day, beautiful day,
This is happy Children's Day;
It shows we bring our hearts to thee, Make them, our Saviour, pure and free.

The annual meeting of the Oxford County Medical Association will be held at the Athol House, Gorham, N. H., Monday evening, June 30, 1902. It has been decided to observe this as ladies' night, and the following program has been arranged. Business meeting at 6 o'clock. Banquet at 7:30. Following the banquet Dr. Fred L. Lewis will read a paper. His subject is, "A Brief Resume of the History of Medicine." The remainder of the evening will be given to sociability, reading and music, instrumental and vocal.

Walter Abbott, of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation, last week completed twenty years service in that capacity. He was born in Rumford, Oct. 4, 1853, was appointed to the police force in Boston, June 15, 1882, and assigned to station 3 on Joy street. On May 25 of this year he was made an inspector in Pemberton Square. During his term on the force he has made many important arrests and is regarded by Chief Inspector Watts as one of the very valuable men on his staff.

Northern Ideas in the South.

A well-known professional man of Oxford county writes—I had the pleasure of reading your local, newsy paper, when stopping at the Hotel Alcazar in St. Augustine, Fla., the past winter, and it seemed like a breeze from our Northern hills. Nothing will make one more appreciative of our New England home than a stay in the South for a few months. The South has its attractions, but they are in no way to be compared to our New England homes, where so many comforts abound, to which our Southern neighbors are strangers. There is no lack of generous hospitality and good cheer, but a great want of enterprise, and real progress in business comes from the Northern people, who are starting new enterprises, making themselves object lessons in establishing comfortable homes with attractive surroundings, and introducing new industries and inculcating business habits among the people, who have never known what intelligent work will accomplish.

The illustrated press articles in Scribner's for July represent the best work of such artists as Will H. Low, Walter Appleton Clark, A. B. Frost and others among the younger men. Mr. Low is represented in an unusual way, in that he furnishes both text and the pictures, and moreover the pictures are reproduced in colors. His article, "In an Old French Garden," chronicles a unique experience.

There is no other season when good medicine is so much needed as in the Spring.

The blood is impure, weak and impoverished—a condition indicated by pimples and other eruptions on the face and body, by deficient vitality, loss of appetite, lack of strength, and want of animation.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Make the blood pure, vigorous and rich, create appetite, give vitality, strength and animation, and cure all eruptions. Have the whole family begin to take them today.

Southern Cake Walks.

We have what are called cake walks in the east, but according to my observation in Dixie we come far short of the genuine article. Ours are but counterfeits and imitations and as inferior to the real thing as was the obsolete tallow dip to the brilliant electric illumination of the 20,000 candle power.

A cake walk in the south, given by the colored people, is to them the event of the season. It is looked forward to with pleasure, talked about with interest, prepared for with enthusiasm, and enjoyed with rapture. Even those among the white people, who mingle only in the best society, boast of their royal blood and go with their heads checked up sufficiently to excite the pity of the agent of the S. I. C. A., consider themselves fortunate to receive an invitation.

I was thus favored at a cake walk given by the colored help at the hotel where I was stopping in Virginia, and gazed upon the scene with wonder and astonishment. Some of the costumes lacked a little in volume, perhaps the pattern was about exhausted before the purchaser found it, but they were not deficient in lending attraction to the occasion. Probably these ladies had been schooled as waiting maids to prepare their modest and fashionable white sisters to appear in evening dress. The interesting dresses, the striking postures, the whimsical changes, and counter charges, the fantastic steps, the odd grimaces, the coquettish attitude and the bewitching smiles, excelled anything I had before witnessed, while the most enchanting concord and exquisite harmony, challenged rapt attention and lent sweetness to the occasion.

Many of the ladies were quite fair and possessed strikingly symmetrical forms, and appearing in short sleeves and low necked dresses, caused the less favored white ladies to look very envious.

The buck and wing dances were peculiar features to a northerner, and one could be reminded of what he had read of old plantation days, when such songs were ringing through the woodland as,

"Possum up de gum stair, Come up de holier,
Fetch 'im down to my house, I'll give you half a dollar."

This took place in the large reception room of the hotel in which the invited white guests had seats but while gazed by the colored people, those who did not take part in the entertainment were on account of color and quality excluded from the room and were allowed only to look through the doors and windows. Such is the custom of the land.

After all I call a colored cake walk a big thing.
To get the best of attention in the south one is obliged to be a little bit of the land and give many tips.
The help are not over paid and this method is used to increase salaries. At the bath house, although the full price is paid to the physicians and for the baths, to insure the full benefit of the treatment of the bather, waiters, and attendants who are paid for doing this very business must be tipped.

At the hotel, table waiters, bell boys, porters and chambermaids expect their tips. They did not fully understand that I was serving another who paid my expenses and that a portion of the tips paid by him were intended for me, and thus I did not at all times get the juiciest beefsteak or the biggest piece of pie nor was my room swept the oftener, or my bed tucked in at the foot.

The colored room girl in going her rounds the night before we left for home tried to call my attention to the subject of tips by saying, "I shall not be up to see you away in the morning," and I replied, "Then I shall have to kiss you good bye tonight." She looked at me with astonishment and "reckoned" (they always reckon down there) that I had never been away from the north before.
That night I took my farewell of the guests, the ladies extended their hands and kindly said good bye and then to their utter disgust I took the same leave of the negroes.

A Growing Evil.

The extent to which modern society is affected with a weakness for something sensational is appalling to the reflective mind. No man in these days escapes the tongue of scandal, and gossip-ers go about from place to place, from house to house, scattering their poisonous shafts.

Anybody and everybody comes in for his share of personal vituperation and abuse, and the worst of it all is in most instances gossippers have nothing more substantial than hearsay as a foundation for the stories they so flippantly repeat.

Not once in a thousand times could the slanderer of his fellow beings produce anything in the shape of legal evidence to back up his assertions. The more thoughtful mind the business of the gossipier is dreaded beyond the power of expression and constitutes the greatest menace to modern society. To such an extent has this menace grown in recent years the no man's reputation is safe for a single day.

Old men, young men, old women, young women fatten and fatten upon the feast of public scandal. As a power for evil, brothels and saloons of the country pale into insignificance in comparison with the growing national sin of talking about one's neighbors. The results of this wide spread evil are awful to contemplate and if not checked will ultimately undermine the foundation of the social structure. It is a constant menace to the home, one of the greatest foes to religion, and jeopardizes to an alarming extent the highest interest of mankind.

As a matter of self preservation, the church of Christ should array itself against this form of immorality and denounce it in the severest terms. It is more malignant than the sting of the adder, more dangerous than the bite of the serpent, and more to be feared than fane and pestilence.

Talebearer, stop a little and reflect.
What do you know personally about the man or woman of whom you hear so much? Could you testify in court to the truthfulness of the vile story you pour into the ears of another, or would you be obliged to confess that someone told you so at a time when the person most concerned was not present to dispute it?

If pressed for an answer, you would be obliged to leave the witness stand in shame and everlasting disgrace. It was recently remarked in the presence of the writer that a man now gone to his reward never spoke ill of any one, and this is his reward; his memory is as sweet as his example is worthy of judgment. Judge not lest ye be judged, with what judgment ye mete it shall be meted unto you."

RUMFORD FALLS.

Graduating Exercises.

Thursday June 19, the largest class in the history of our high school held their commencement exercises, received their diplomas and stepped off the stage of school life here. Martha Sanders Reed of the classical course will enter Bates college in the fall. The exercises were very interesting and fitted for the occasion. The program:

The reception in the evening was a brilliant affair. A musical program was given, made up of trombone solos by Mr. Irish, of Maine Festival, vocal selections by M. Louise Staples, the school quartet and piano duets.

The commencement concert was well attended and was a success artistically and financially.

Three students were graduated from the rural schools completing the same course as the high school.

Mrs. John Houghton.

The many friends of John Houghton, the hotel keeper at Houghton, will share in his sorrow because of the death of his wife. She had been in ill health for some time and finally a surgical operation was deemed necessary.
She went to the Central Maine General Hospital at Lewiston. The operation was unfortunately followed by her death last week.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Smith of Canton, Mrs. R. B. Steaton of Rum-ford Falls and Lida Abbott of Houghton.
Also two sons, Fred and Houghton, and William now of California. She had won a large circle of friends who mourn this great loss.

Rev. C. L. Parker of Yarmouth preached at Mexico Sunday.

Twenty-five new members have recently joined the A. O. W. W.

The people of Rumford Falls are planning to go to Dixfield to help celebrate the Fourth.

The barbers and clerks are down for a ball game in the near future and it is promised to be a hot one.

A team driven by Wm. Cyr ran away last week Tuesday. The horse ran into a junk peddler's team and was stopped.

Hon. John P. Swasey of Canton was at Tufts college last week. He received the degree A. M. from the college commencement week.

Antoni Sessels, a Polish boy about 10 years of age, fell into the canal while bathing, to insure the full benefit of the treatment of the bather, waiters, and
very business must be tipped.

As Cliff Rolfe was driving a delivery team the horse stumbled and fell. Rolfe was thrown, struck the curbing and became unconscious. He is recovering in good shape.

Children's day was observed at the Baptist church Sunday. The pastor, by the pastor on "The Call of Samuel." An interesting and pleasing concert was given in the evening.

The training school for teachers closed recently with eight graduates who are fitted to teach any of the schools in the town. Some of the graduates will have schools in town next year.

Rev. Rufus H. Dix has resigned the pastorate of the Universalist church to take effect in August. He has been here a little more than a year and has made a host of friends who are sorry to lose him.

Wednesday, the 18, a pair of horses attached to a milk wagon were frightened by a train and ran away. Wm.
Thatcher, John Welch and Harry Marx finally succeeded in stopping the team without great damage.

Plans are well developed for the counting room of the new Bank. The contracts have been awarded. The vaults will be double, burglar proof, yale time locks and the whole appointments are equal to any of the banks in the large cities.

Track laying on the extension of the R. F. & R. L. R. has nearly reached Rangleley Outlet. A station is to be established near Haines Landing to be known as Strathglass, the same name as given to park of ideal working men's homes to be constructed here. This is from the name of the Scotch name of the Chisholm ancestral home.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, the well-known woman suffragist, threatened with blindness. For two weeks she has been confined to her home near Boston under the care of eye specialists, and it is feared that she may become blind.
The disease has been progressing for a long time, despite the efforts of specialists to check it.

A former South Paris young man, J.
Otis Swift, was recently given the following complimentary notice in "Boston Ideas." "Merit ever in the newspaper world meets just praise now and then. One of the bright young editors of the New York World, is J. Otis Swift, who besides writing for his own paper, is an occasional and interesting contributor to the New England press."

The Bridgton News says:—Many persons whose duty it is to be very careless and negligent as to supplying "pulpit notices" for various affairs as to which notices are supposed to be given. No hour, the wrong month, no notice at all, and then advising the minister for not knowing and supplying the defect.

Good rule is to give notice where it is correctly supplied, otherwise ignore it.
Indeed, half of the "notices" dumped upon the pulpit desk would better be omitted. The less the minister has to say, the better. "Ladies please bring cake."

Are boys born wise, do they not need an education, or what is the trouble?
In nearly all the class pictures of graduating classes, this summer, from high schools there are only two or three boys and a dozen or more girls. Perhaps it is only the "girl classes" that are vain about their pictures. In a great many places where advancement and education are the principal objects men and boys have dropped out and left the field almost entirely to women.

This is noticeable not only in graduations, but in churches, lectures, concerts, etc. They complain that women are crowding them out of fields of labor and thought when they do not make very much effort to get there.

NOT GOOD DANCERS.

American Women Ridiculous on a Waxed Floor, Says London Master.

America looms large in the coronation prospectuses issued by the dance masters. London women and men hailing from Yankee land are invited to come early and avoid the rush. They are told that next season the British capital will surrender itself to the delights of dancing, and that Americans can satisfactorily participate in the festivities only by learning in advance how to maneuver in a ballroom according to the accepted English fashion.

Many new movements specially created for the coronation are announced, and masters claim that Americans will be given opportunity to study them nowhere except in cockney academies.

Mr. Walter Humphrey, head of a London academy of dancing and editor of "The Dancing Times," says: "Englishmen cannot admire the art of the ballroom as taught in the United States. It violates every principle of graceful motion. American ladies are especially ridiculous when they try to dance. Their vertical demonstrations are exaggerated, not to say grotesque. Their bodies sway about absurdly, and they attempt to lead rather than follow their male companions."

"American ladies never dance ac-ceptably in smart circles in London without first getting instruction at the hands of capable teachers. Englishmen and it quite impossible to follow their vigorous and complicated gyrations.
English ladies permit their demean partners to lead absolutely.
They understand that proficiency in the art of dancing from their point of view consists in accommodating their movements perfectly to those of their companions."

"They preserve an easy rigidity of body and glide through the figures instead of leaping and hopping excitedly.
English ladies are able to dance with American gentlemen far better than English gentlemen with American ladies."

Mr. Humphrey asserts that the dance academies of London always have a large number of Americans getting rid of terpsichorean vulgarisms picked up in the United States and taking on the graces of the art as understood and practiced in English society.

Women Hermits in Russia.

Among the villagers on the Volga in the province of Samara a curious sect of women has made its appearance. It was originated by an elderly peasant woman in Soznova, called the Blessed Mother. These women have fled from the villages around into a remote district, where they live singly in holes cut out of the floor of the house. They lead a life of fasting and prayer and believe themselves called from the world, which they think is shortly about to perish in a general conflagration. The Blessed Mother has "ten wise virgins" as a sort of bodyguard, and the sect believes that these 11 women are possessed of miraculous powers.—London Globe.

Her Long Service.

At the Salpêtrière in Paris there is a woman surveillant of wards who is soon to retire from service that has covered a period of 62 years. She is Mlle. Bottard, and on entering the hospital was given an unimportant post, which she filled for 25 years without promotion. Since her entrance she has had but two vacations of one day each, and these she celebrated by losing her way in the Paris streets.
She was presented with the cross of the Legion of Honor by the late Felix Faure as a reward for her faithful service, and she will receive a pension at the close of her hospital service.

The Care of Oily Hair.

"Too oily hair is the result of a poor circulation. It should be constantly attended to and washed every week. It is caused by too much grease between the skull and the scalp. It is bad grease and can only be removed by massage, because massage is the only thing that will bring the blood to the surface. To pour a tonic on greasy hair is like pouring water on olive oil.

"Greasy hair has large pores. It requires more washing, more soap or shampoo, less brushing and much massage."

Bernhardt in the Lead.

At a recent garden party given by the Duchess of Sutherland Sarah Bernhardt was the most observed woman present, says a London correspondent.
One who was there says that her pale rose silk gown, with broad applications of cream lace, was a revelation of artistic simplicity. A long, cream colored coat of silk strapped with cloth of the same color was worn over this dress, None Worth the Strain.

Uncle George—Honest, now, Hannah, do you believe it is possible for a woman to keep a secret?
Aunt Hannah—Of course it is. But I don't think, to tell the truth, that there ever was a secret that was worth keeping.—Boston Transcript.

New Rangleley Lake Steamer.

The latest acquisition to the service of the Rangleley Lake Steamboat company feet on deck over-all and has a draught of four feet. She is fitted with modern compound engines, having diameter of cylinders 8 and 17 inches, respectively, with ten inches stroke of piston, and on her trial trip on Saturday forenoon she developed a speed of fifteen statute miles per hour. She also has independcabin furnishings are installed with a view to insure comfort and durability, and her passenger carrying capacity provides for 150 first class.

Flesh of the Angora.

The flesh of the young Angora is in many respects superior to lamb, and is in demand in Kansas City, Chicago and New York. In Kansas City recently a lot of Angoras brought 25 cents a head more than any sheep on the market at that time, and at no time has there been enough good flesh to supply the demand.
